

GREAT OAKS PUBLIC SAFETY SERVICES LEADERSHIP SERIES PRESENTS:

PETE HAVEL

“THE ARSONIST IN THE OFFICE”

We'll be tracking down agency arsonists — the kinds of people, mindsets, and career-stopping mistakes — with Pete Havel, author of “The Arsonist in the Office”, master of office politics, workplace culture, confronting chaos and bad behavior, and building great departments. This training class is the ultimate education on dealing with the challenge that can take down careers and departments—the Culture. Whether you are a new officer who wants to take in everything you possibly can, or a supervisor or mid-level manager who wants to lead people, you need to understand culture, the risks that come with it, and the opportunities for a better career and life if you get it right. Pete Havel's full-day session will teach you next-level understanding and tactics for building the department people want to work in, and your role in that department, no matter your current rank.

This day of training is designed for the public safety professional who wants to learn the principles of effective leadership and problem solving in today's public safety & municipal organization culture. This course is meant for officers, first-line supervisors and other mid-level leaders who are focused on the future of their organizations and improving their agency cultures. We especially encourage you to attend if your executive team attended Day One so that all of your team members are speaking the same language. All attendees will receive the book “The Arsonist in the Office”.

If your Chief or Executive team leader attends day one, your registration fee for day two will be discounted 50% plus you receive a copy of the book. *******
